The Government have considered the question whether, in view of the impending formation of the Andhra State it is necessary for the Commission to hold competitive examinations for direct recruitment to the several technical and non-technical services according to the usual programme of selections this year. They have come to the conclusion that it is not necessary to hold in abeyance recruitment to all the services and posts generally, but that it will be sufficient if the appointmening authorities concerned postpone their requisitions for recruitment except in cases where appointment of fresh recruits is considered by them to be absolutely necessary for administrative reasons. Where such recruitment is considered unavoidable, the authorities should restrict the member of candidates to be recruited to the absolute minimum and report only that member to the commission. The Commission in such cases will supply names of approved candidates selcted from the current examination lists of 1952. If there are no candidates on the current list, the Commission will proceed with recruitment and supply a list of candidates as usual. In accordance with the orders issued in G.O.1157, Public (Services), dated 30-4-53, the candidates recommended by the Commission will be appointed strictly on a temporary basis. The Heads of Departments and all other appointing authorities concerned who have already sent their requisitions for recruitment to the Commission in accordance with the usual programme of selection should review their requisitions in the light of these instructions.
